Stirring Speeches of Generals J. B. Sweitzer, John F. Hartranft and Adam E. King.

City Hall Ablaze with Enthusiasm.

The Convention of Soldiers and Sailors of Allegheny county, pursuant to a call signed by a large number of honorably discharged soldiers, of both political parties, met at City Hall last night, for the purpose of adopting some plan whereby concert of action could be had in securing the election of General Grant. The hall was thrown open to the public at seven o'clock, when a large number of soldiers and citizens soon gathered in and took seats.

It was half-past seven o'clock when the delegations began to arrive. The first in order was the delegation of "Boys in Blue" from the Seventh and Eighth wards, which was soon followed by the Second Ward Grant Club, in uniform and with torches, other delegations of "Boys in Blue" came in one after another, and at eight o'clock the hall was filled with soldiers and sailors.

Major J. H. Morrison moved that the Convention come to order by appointing Major J. F. Denniston temporary Chairman. The motion was unanimously adopted.

Major Denniston, on taking the chair, made a few remarks, thanking his comrades for the honor conferred, and then gave a brief history of the origin of the Convention.

GENERAL J. B. SWEITZER.

General Sweitzer then introduced Major General King, formerly Adjutant General on

General Hancock's staff, and for some time Adjutant General of the Third Division of the old Sixth Corps, to which two Pittsburgh Regiments, the One-hundred-and-second and One-hundred-and-thirty-ninth, were attached. He was received with rounds of applause, and when order was restored he spoke as follows:

Comrades of the Army of the Union and Fellow Citizens of Pennsylvania: From the bottom of my soul I congratulate you upon this most auspicious assembly. [Cheers.] I congratulate you that, flinging aside all past party affiliations, all past prejudices, that you, the representatives of the men that for five years bore the destinies of this land upon their bayonets, come here to-night and still renew your pledges of devotion for the cause for which you fought. [Applause.] I congratulate you that you, through the smoke and carnage of many sanguinary fields, bore that flag from victory to victory, and now come up here to follow your old leader again. [Cheers.] I speak to you as a Maryland soldier and a Maryland Republican. [Renewed cheering.] I come from a State where treason is at a premium and loyalty at a discount. I come from a State whose whole legal machinery from Governor down to the court constable is in the hands of the men who were nominated and elected simply because they hated the union of the States. I come from a State and a city where you can see every day of your lives Union soldiers at the street corners eking out a miserable existence by grinding hand organs, while rebel soldiers are seen stalking around as policemen. However, that has nothing to do with your gathering here to-night. The cause in which we are engaged rises superior to any personal consideration. The true men of all parties are coming up to-night and giving their voices to the cause of liberty, of truth and of justice. [Prolonged applause.]

I honor such a man (pointing to General Sweitzer) as that from the bottom of my heart, and right here Maryland gives her hand to Pennsylvania. (The speaker here advanced to Gen. Sweitzer and shook hands with him. This was greeted with the wildest cheers.)

I need not speak to you, my friends, of the past record of the party that now asks your suffrage for its candidates. It is so inseparably interwoven with your most precious and glorious memories, that no man can strengthen your reasons by recalling those records to your remembrance. I need not tell you how this party when it came into power found its armies scattered, its navies sent to the remotest seas, and every department of the government prepared for the expected rebellion. I need not tell you how coming to the helm of State, Abraham Lincoln, relying upon the people—aye the common people—of this country, called upon them to save this threatened land. [Loud cheers.] The war was inaugurated. It went on with varying success. The Government strove to secure obedience by the force of arms. The cry came up "More men," and our patriot chief at Washington heard the response of the loyal people, and his honest face lighted up with a glorious smile. He heard the response—

"We are coming, Father Abraham,
Three hundred thousand more."

[Cheers.] The war went on; justice was done to a down-trodden race, and from that day victory commenced. Phil. Sheridan swept the valley of the Shenandoah as with a broom, and the stars on our banner grew brighter as "Sherman Marched Down to the Sea." You were all participants in this and you all know how through plots and counterplots, through glory and distress, this great Union party of the country strode forward to the consummation of its divine purpose—to save the life of this nation. You all know these things, and I call your attention to it respectfully, my comrades of the old Sixth Corps; it is your duty now to stop and inquire whether you shall vote as you shot or join another cause which has endeavored and is now endeavoring to bring upon this country ruin, destruction and shame. [Applause.] Let us endeavor then, for a little time, to see whether the Republican party deserves your confidence, and whether it is not worthy of your support. The Republican party might have rested its claims to your support upon its conduct of the war. When the war was over its battalions were disbanded, and its soldiers went back to a peaceful life. That was a great work; but the Republican party did some other things which entitle it to the sympathies of this Republic. It introduced and carried out its railroad schemes that shall bind the country in iron links that shall last forever. Think of this. But it did some other things. I can only call your attention to the bill for giving homesteads to the people, rejected by the Democratic houses in 1856, but which was taken up by the Republican Congress and passed, so that any man can pack up his household goods, and by the payment of a mere nominal sum obtain a provision for life. [Applause.] There were vast numbers of people in the South, whose property had been confiscated by the rebels. A bill was introduced to restore to the loyal people their property. The Democratic party voted against that bill, but the Republican party passed it, and to-day the loyal people of the South are in the enjoyment of their homes. I call your attention to this to show you that it was capable of doing other things than carry on the war.

But its great work was yet to come. After the murder of Mr. Lincoln they found this [illegible] charged, for like manure enriching the land it always brings its return. That leaves a hundred and three millions of dollars for this year. Of that amount the army takes thirty-three millions of dollars. There are thirty-six regiments, costing about five hundred and fifty thousand dollars to each regiment. During the last four years of Buchanan's administration the expenses of the army were twenty-two million of dollars in gold. There were nineteen regiments in our army then, making the cost of each regiment over a million of dollars in gold, or about one million five hundred thousand dollars in paper.

Another item, the diplomatic services in Buchanan's administration cost forty-six millions of dollars a year. Under the Republican administration it costs about forty-two millions a year, an average of four millions less, and we have now a great many more consuls, ministers, &c., than they did then.

Under the Democratic rule, the Postoffice Department cost from two to five hundred millions a year; now it never costs over two hundred millions a year. At this time of great depreciation in values, we are spending less money for specific purposes than was expended under Democratic rule. The population of the country has increased about nine millions. This will show that the expenses of the Republican party have been greatly magnified. I ask you if it is fair to charge a party with extravagance after such a record as that. That is enough for the money question to-night.

But discarding the question of currency and expenses, there is something about a nation that rises higher and is nobler than paltry considerations of money. The Union party of the country, at Chicago, said that the payment of the debt should be in such money as the civilized world recognized as payment, and the loyal people of this country will never consent to any other. (Cheers.) It is a question of national honor, and I dismiss it to your consideration. I know I could touch no better chord of a soldier's heart than his devotion to the honor of his flag and his country.

But, my friends, I want to ask you now whether or not the party that proposed to keep the national honor and carry out the laws is not the party to deserve the soldiers' support? With such a cause and such candidates we can in the spirit which struck the fetters from millions of slaves, invoke the judgment of the American people and the gracious favor of Almighty God. Consider the candidates of the respective parties. I never indulge in vituperation. No cause is strengthened by vituperation and abuse. Consider that wise, faithful soldier, without a taint of ambition, although he had placed at his disposal the entire military power of the country he withdrew it. That speaks General Grant's character. The moment the war was over he recommended the remission of penalties due an offended nation. But he needs no eulogy from any soldier of America. You might blot out the names of living millions, but you cannot blot out the name of Ulysses S. Grant. He will live for other times and speak the other hearts than ours. The land he has saved and the cause he has saved from shame will live long after the thirteen rose gardens of Wade Hampton have disappeared. In after times his name will be written far above all others but one, and beside that of the father of his country, as the name of the man who saved this land.

Of his illustrious associate we can speak in terms equally warm. The child of obscurity, he has been elevated to the third highest place in the gift of the nation, that of Speaker of the House of Representatives. That man is Schuyler Colfax. [Cheers.]

Contrast these two men if you please with the gentlemen who oppose them. I have nothing to say against Mr. Seymour. I believe he is in some respects a very worthy citizen in his way. But Mr. Seymour has no sympathy with the toiling people of this country. He was born to affluence. He has no sympathy with those upward aspirations which the people of this country have to-day in their hearts.

He reminds me of Pope's description of a proper gentleman:

He speaks as he should, and acts as he ought,
But never, never reaches one generous thought.

The speaker next referred to Frank P. Blair, expressing the opinion that it would better for him if everything connected with him had been blotted out except his record as an American soldier. The American people had had quite enough of the Blair family. Montgomery Blair had said in a letter to the President that when the good of the American people required his withdrawal from the public service he wished to be informed of the fact. The President told him the day had come. If the destinies of the people were committed to the care of Frank P. Blair he would consign our country to its enemies.

In alluding to the candidates of the opposition, he characterized Seymour as a man without a particle of sympathy for the soldiers or the cause for which they fought; and as for Frank Blair, he thought the best thing that could be done by the American people, was to blot from their remembrance everything connected with his history except his record as a soldier. He depicted in eloquent language the horrors of the rebellion, and asked the soldiers if they wished to see these scenes enacted over again. If not, then he besought them to vote for the man who conquered peace and was determined to maintain it. If they desired another war, let them vote for the candidates who were pledged to bring it about. He concluded by an earnest and eloquent appeal to his comrades to stand by the right and vote for Gen. Grant. He then left the stand amid loud and continued plaudits.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS AND ADDRESS.

R. B. Parkinson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions and Address, then made the following report:

COMRADES: When in the ever memorable days of '61 the flag of the nation was trailed in the dust by the hands of traitors, the loyal men of the land—men of all countries and creeds who dwelt under the folds of that ever glorious banner, sprang, as one man, to arms. Then true men stopped not to inquire about each other's nativity, religion or politics. Democrats, Republicans—men of all shades of politics, moved by a common purpose, love of country, at once cast aside all political differences and united to restore our insulted flag to every place throughout the entire land, where it rightfully belonged.

The history of the four years of war for the Union is written in letters of blood, and is familiar to all. Every soldier knows but too well the privations endured and the sacrifices made to save and perpetuate the Union.

When at last, under the leadership of Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Thomas, rebellion was routed from every stronghold of treason, and Lee and his armed traitors surrendered to our great Captain, and Johnston laid down his arms before the victorious Sherman, the soldiers of the Union returned again to peaceful pursuits in the fond hope that the war was over, their work done, and the blessings of liberty forever secured.

SOLDIERS: The conflict is not yet ended. Transferred from the field of battle to that of civil strife, it still rages, and the contest now, as in the bloody days of the past, is between loyalty and disloyalty. The enemies of the Union seek to attain through the ballot-box what they failed to accomplish by arms.

Those men of the North who, in the trying hours when the nation struggled for its existence, sympathized with your foes, the enemies of your common country, men who never had one word of encouragement for you, but interposed every obstacle, short of taking up arms, against your success and the triumph of your cause, have joined hands with your beaten adversaries and seek to wrest the government of this nation from its true and tried friends, and entrust it to its vanquished but still unrepentant enemies.

Rejecting every one who fought for or in any way aided the cause of the Union, they have placed themselves under the leadership of a man whose heart, during the war, beat in sympathy with traitors—who predicted and pronounced the war a failure—who in the most trying hours of the rebellion promised his friends, who were not your friends, that he would try and prevent you from receiving that succor and support, without which the war would indeed have been a failure.

They have declared all the acts of reconstruction passed to secure the fruits of your great victories unconstitutional and void. They declare that in the event of their success at the ballot-box the acts of a loyal Congress, representing a loyal people, shall be overturned, and Congress itself dispersed by force, and in their success all these things for which traitors fought they shall thereby achieve.

SOLDIERS: When the leaders of rebellion—traitors to their country—insolently dictate the platform of a once great party, introducing therein the essential principles of the lost cause; when Preston, Forrest, Beauregard and Wade Hampton, rebel leaders, construct the only part of that platform which constitutes the only real and substantial issue in the present political contest, is it not your imperative duty to again unite in a common cause, and again go forth to battle for the Union? Are the fruits of your great sacrifices and victories to be lost? Will you surrender the control of this Government to the men who plunged the country into the bloodiest and most costly civil war of modern times? Or will you place at the head of this nation the man who led you through the dark and trying hours of the country's peril to triumph and peace?

Men of all parties! Soldiers of the Union! Sink every consideration of a party character, lay aside all partisan prejudice and unite again on the broad platform. Let us take up the watchword given us by our chief and go forward once more, shoulder to shoulder, and by our unity of action secure to your beloved country peace. Peace to all sections North, South, East and West, and to all men, from whatever clime or country they may come seeking protection under the broad flag of the free.

Resolved, That we, the soldiers of Allegheny county, without distinction of party, in convention assembled, believing that the election of Horatio Seymour to the Presidency of the United States would prove a great calamity to our country, and undo all that has been done to restore peace to the land; and believing that the election of U. S. Grant to that high office would secure peace and the fruits of victory, and restore law, order and good-will throughout the nation, do pledge ourselves to support that great Captain at the coming Presidential election, and use every honorable means within our power to secure his success.

ANOTHER SONG.

The Second Ward Glee Club was then introduced and sang a stirring song, which was received with rapturous applause.

THE VETERAN PHALANX.

General Sweitzer then announced that blank rolls had been prepared for circulation and signatures, for the purpose of carrying into effect the objects of the Convention. They would be distributed among the members, when all would have an opportunity to affix their names. The heading to the roll read as follows:

We, the undersigned discharged United States soldiers and sailors, do hereby enlist for the Presidential campaign, in the "Grant Veteran Phalanx" of Allegheny county, Gen. J. B. Sweitzer commander-in-chief. Fifty members shall be the minimum and one hundred the maximum of a company. Each company shall have its own officers. Aids shall be appointed by the commander-in-chief. By our signatures we bind ourselves to honor all commands of the proper officers during the campaign. Companies may determine whether they shall be mounted or foot.

THE ADJOURNMENT.

On motion of Major Denniston, the convention then adjourned to meet at the call of the Executive Committee.

Before leaving the platform Gen. Sweitzer proposed three cheers for Gen. Grant, which were given with a will. This was immediately followed by three cheers for Gen. Sweitzer, three for Gen. Hartranft, three for Gen. King, three for Gen. Negley, and three more for Gen. Hartranft.

The meeting was one of the most spirited and enthusiastic we ever witnessed—such a demonstration as soldiers only can make.

Schuyler Colfax and party arrived at Omaha yesterday morning, and was met at the depot by a company of Tanners. He made a short speech, referring to the deplorable condition of Indian affairs in Colorado and Wyoming, and said he would urge upon Congress immediate and decisive action against the savages. He believed that nothing less than severe punishment would bring them to terms. The party started for Chicago at noon.

Mrs. S. L. Bremen, a widow lady residing in Helena, Arkansas, was robbed on the train between St. Louis and Chicago, last Monday night, of $3,000, the proceeds of a sale of some property in Chicago, and all she possessed in the world. She was chloroformed while asleep, and the money abstracted from a pocket in an underskirt.

GENERAL SWEITZER.

A week or two ago, we stated that Gen. J. Bowman Sweitzer had determined to cast his influence in favor of Grant, and that he would avail himself of some suitable occasion to give his reasons and define his position. Such an occasion was afforded at the convention of soldiers, without party distinction, held in City Hall last evening, to organize an Independent Veteran Corps for the support of Grant and Colfax.

General Sweitzer's speech, printed in another column, has the genuine ring. It is the voice of the true patriot and brave man, and will stir his old comrades like the [illegible]

THEN AND NOW.

can be no doubt whatever that the seeds of dissension were sown a second time by the leaders of the Democratic party, who, instead of uniting their efforts with the Republicans, and striving to accommodate the differences which were more sectional than national, [illegible] upon the grievances, and the alleged passions of the Southern people."

Thus, in 1868, we have the unrepentant rebels clamoring, not for redress of real or fancied grievances, not for rights that the issue of the war deprived them of, but for the acknowledgment of the principles which they failed to secure in a resort to arms! In 1868, we have HAMPTON, FORREST, TOOMBS, [illegible], COBB, SEMMES and PRESTON demanding full recognition of State rights, the power to reward or punish their former slaves, and exemption from the action of the general Government. In making these demands they are aided and abetted, in fact they derive their strength from the sympathy of the Democratic party. At the head of this party, occupying the position of standard-bearer, we find HORATIO SEYMOUR, who, whatever may be said of him, is consistent in his course in this respect. He who in 1861 counselled a compromise with the rebels, and was willing to grant them their utmost demands, is now as ever ready to champion their cause. The feeling that moves a loyal, earnest man who gave his time, his money and his blood in defense of the Government, to shrink from the association of unrepentant rebels, is unknown to the champion of secession. A common aim and a common understanding render them of one disposition.

Where is the chief whose resolution and courage crushed the rebellion? [illegible] with scheming politicians, engaged in intrigue? Trafficking in the sale of the principles underlying the foundation of the Government? Purchasing the friendship of those who strove their utmost to overthrow it, at the expense of dignity, self respect and honor? He stands in 1868, as he stood at the beginning and the ending of the war, a firm, unflinching supporter of the Government. He also is the leader and standard bearer of a party, surrounded by those whom he led to victory through the smoke and carnage of an hundred battles. Compare these two leaders and their respective parties, contrast their positions in 1861 and 1868. The one is the [illegible] of the Republic, while the other is hailed as her glorious and successful defender.

PITTSBURGH MANUFACTURES.

American Steel.

Where It is Made, Who Makes It, And How It is Made.

THE SIEMEN'S PROCESS.

If we were requested to point out a single manufacturing branch which, more than another, reflects credit upon Pittsburgh enterprise, we would unhesitatingly designate the manufacture of steel. To Pittsburgh perseverance and patience must be awarded the credit of surmounting the difficulties arising from a limited knowledge of the proper materials, a complete isolation of the skilled labor, a lack of experience necessary to the production of a superior article, and the outspoken prejudice against home made steel.* Nothing but the most indomitable energy and resolution on the part of our leading steel manufacturers, who struggled almost against hope in the effort to produce the higher grades of steel, overcoming obstacle after obstacle, enables us to-day to compete favorably with England in the manufacture of the very best article.† It is not too much to claim that Pittsburgh, to-day is virtually the Sheffield of America. Among the establishments which have won for us this enviable position we class

THE PITTSBURGH STEEL WORKS, Anderson & Woods, proprietors. These works properly speaking are the pioneer steel works of America. In this establishment Woods, Jones & Spring began the manufacture of blister, spring and plow steel in 1845. Subsequently other parties engaged in the manufacture of a similar quality of steel, in connection with the manufacture of iron, but for a number of years, there were but two establishments in the city specially engaged in the manufacture of steel. In 1855, Mr. Jones began the manufacture of the finer grades of steel, in the production of which the concern has since achieved the most remarkable results. [illegible]

we never examined. We confidently predict that the day will come when cast, cast steel frogs will wholly displace cast iron frogs.

THE MACHINERY, MOTIVE POWER &C.

The machinery employed in these works is admirably adapted to the peculiar duties required of it, embracing one large Nasmyth hammer, one train twenty inch plain rolls; one train sixteen inch rolls for rolling steel, two sixteen inch trains for making flat bar iron and steel, rounds and squares, one nine inch train and one eight inch train for light work; three pair double shears, for heavy work, ten pair small shears, six large trip hammers, and a second steam hammer, with a hundred pound hammer head. There are sixteen heating furnaces, that for the large hammer being the largest furnace we have examined, and as many small heating fires.

The weight of the Nasmyth hammer is: legs fourteen thousand pounds each, cylinder seven tons, hammer head five tons, anvil block nineteen tons, two bed plates sixteen tons, total fifty-four tons. This hammer will strike a blow of a hundred tons, or crack a hazel nut, and all in the space of a minute. The foundation of this enormous piece of machinery is if anything more remarkable than the hammer itself.

The motive power is furnished by four engines, supplied with steam by a battery of six large boilers. By an admirable arrangement of the connecting pipes, with the introduction of a large heater, steam can be let on or cut off at any given point throughout the works, which are under the direct supervision of one of the proprietors, whose connection with the establishment dates from 1845.

The concern we may add has every facility, and is now prepared to make castings and forgings weighing from one hundred pounds to five tons. The establishment employs two hundred and seventy-five hands, and turns out annually four thousand tons of steel.

[illegible]

*The impression that a superior article of steel could not be made in America, although no doubt originated by English manufacturers and mechanics, was not confined to foreigners. American mechanics were even more skeptical, and, indeed, were the last to bestow due credit upon the tools manufactured from American steel. Thanks to a truer conception of the policy which should govern our people, American mechanics, instead of grudgingly yielding a tardy acknowledgment of the merits of American steel, are now prompt in bestowing their unqualified approval.

EXPULSION OF NEGROES FROM THE GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

A History of the Transaction—The Attitude of the Expelled Members.

Full details of the proceedings of the Georgia Legislature divests the action of that body, in expelling the negro members, of a strictly partisan character. A careful count of the vote shows that but twelve white Republican members sustained the claims of the colored members, while the remainder of the whites, Democrats, Republicans and Independents, voted for their expulsion without regard to party distinction. The action of the Republicans is attributed to the argument made by Chief Justice Brown, who assumed the ineligibility of the negroes, the speeches of the lawyers who, without reference to party, opposed the colored members, and the efforts of Brown, who warned the Convention not to confer the right to hold office, and argued that the Reconstruction acts did not require it.

When, at the commencement of the session, the question of the eligibility of certain members, whom it was thought the Fourteenth Article of the Constitution of the United States would affect, was discussed, the Republicans, including the colored members, voted to admit them. All of the members who obtained their seats through the generous forbearance of the Republicans, were Democrats, numbering thirty odd members, many of whom, it is asserted, had held office before and during the war, and had also served in the Confederate army. The moment these doubtful members were firm in their seats, they voted directly for the expulsion of the negroes. The manner in which the expulsion of the latter was effected is related by a correspondent of the New York Tribune:

"The eligibility of F. H. Fyall, a sitting member, had been referred to the Committee on Privileges, a majority of whom were Republicans. By some hocus-pocus, the Democratic minority report was substituted for that of the majority, and Mr. Scott (Democrat) then reported that Mr. Fyall was not a citizen of Macon, but of Bibb county, that he was a person of color, and therefore not entitled to a seat. Another Democrat then offered a substitute that no person of color was eligible to a seat in the Legislature under the Constitution of the State, and Mr. Scott accepted the substitute."

When the question was finally determined affirmatively, as we have already stated. The correspondent of the Tribune terms this a plot, and asserts that it was finally accomplished by the disaffection of several weak-kneed Republicans. Upon the other hand we are assured that the result was brought about by the unanimous agreement on the part of the white members, that the reconstruction acts did not confer the right to hold office. It is difficult to conceive the possibility of a plot where the majority permitted themselves to be guided by a minority. Many of the Republican members incline to the belief that if the reconstruction acts contemplate conferring office upon the negroes the language of the acts would be more explicit. They remind those who hold different views that when it was intended to confer the right on negroes to hold office in the District of Columbia, where Congress is omnipotent, it was found necessary to pass a special statute to that effect, in addition to the acts which declared them citizens. These views they receive from ex-Gov. Brown, whose sympathies are with the Republican party.

The expelled members have published a protest, in which they state that they are the representatives of a race numbering "over 500,000 citizens and 90,000 legal electors of the State," allude to the fact that "they have supported and protected the families of the whites when the latter were upon distant battle-fields in the service of the Confederate States," disclaim all intention to "attempt to redress their wrongs in a manner that may, in this time of political excitement, [illegible] loss of a mother's care.

A dispatch from Vienna, Scott county, Ind., says that forty of the Jackson county vigilance committee surrounded the jail at Lexington, on Sunday night, compelled the jailer to surrender the keys, and made a thorough search of the premises for the Reno brothers, railway robbers. They then proceeded to Vienna, expecting the Renos would be brought up on the evening train. They also had a small party watching the Charleston road, but they were disappointed, as the prisoners are still in jail in New Albany.

STATE POLITICS.

WESTMORELAND COUNTY.

Special Correspondence of Pittsburgh Commercial.
HARRISON CITY, September 7, 1868.

Saturday night there was another of those grand Republican assemblages that have become so frequent of late, and that are disturbing the slumbers of the adherents of Seymour and Blair, and causing them to howl, "Let us have repudiation." The grand rally of which we now write was held on the old camp ground at Harrison City, in a shady grove. Long before the hour of organization had arrived quite a crowd had collected, and music was discoursed by the martial band, uniformed by J. C. Rankin expressly for the Grant campaign. In the meantime large delegations were coming in from the various townships and boroughs, headed by bands, banners and transparencies. After they all had arrived, quite a lengthy Grant and Colfax pole was raised amidst much vociferous cheering. Speeches were made by Hon. A. M. Fulton and J. F. Wentling. The meeting passed off very nicely and adjourned with cheers for Grant and Colfax.

CLARION COUNTY.

Our Shippenville correspondent "J. T. M." writes that a Grant and Colfax club has been organized there with the following officers: President, Captain Valentine Phipps; Vice Presidents, Jacob Myers and Wm. Brenneman; Secretary, G. B. Kiser; Corresponding Secretary, J. T. McAninch; Treasurer, Jacob Shull. At a meeting on Saturday evening last, James Hahn, Esq., and Colonel S. Young delivered stirring addresses on the issues of the campaign, and urging every friend of the Union to rally around Grant and Colfax.

This Company, National in its character, offers, by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.

The rates of premium, being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insurers as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the Policy-Holders.

Several new and attractive tables are now presented which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY and RETURN PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policy-holder not only secures a Life Insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent. (10 per cent.) of the par of his policy. In the latter, the Company agrees to return to the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.

The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Company.

Circulars, Pamphlets and full particulars given on application to the Branch Office of the Company in Philadelphia, or to its General Agents.

LOCAL AGENTS ARE WANTED in every City and Town; and applications from competent parties for such agencies, with suitable indorsement, should be addressed TO THE COMPANY'S GENERAL AGENTS ONLY, in their respective districts.

DR. SARGENT'S

BACKACHE PILLS

Is the most efficient and most popular Diuretic Medicine known, removing at once any obstruction of the Kidneys, subduing Inflammation and Strengthening the Urinary Organs.

DR. SARGENT'S BACKACHE PILLS

Have been in use 35 years, and are daily performing wonderful cures. In many instances where patients were unable to walk upright or to rise without assistance, they have been relieved by a single dose.

DR. SARGENT'S BACKACHE PILLS

Cure all Diseases of the Urinary Organs, the symptoms of which are Weakness and Pain in the Back and Loins, Pains in the Joints, difficulty in Voiding the Urine, General Debility, etc., etc.

THE KIDNEYS, BLADDER, &c.,

Are those Organs through which most of the waste or worn out particles of the body passes; these worn out and dead particles are poisonous, consequently when these organs are diseased, the whole system becomes deranged and if not relieved at once the result may be fatal.

This much esteemed and most efficient Medicine is the only Diuretic that is put up in the shape of Pills, and is much more easily taken than the ordinary Diuretic draughts—the Pills being sugar-coated.

Price—50 cents per box.

The Celebrated Walter Grape.

After twenty-five years experience with the present tender, and late varieties we know the Walter, when first offered, will restore confidence in Grape raising. It never rots. Its abundant sugar raisins it in-doors or on the vine; it is a great grower and bearer, and now contains 146 clusters of bloom; is very compact in cluster at the East, which is in advantage in marketing. It succeeds in dry and very wet soil. It is a seedling of the Delaware, crossed with the Diana, and better than either. Ripens before the Hartford, therefore, the earliest, hardiest and best variety. No. 1, one year, $5 each, in advance. Orders filled in rotation, while supply lasts. No charge for packing. Send stamp for beautiful cut and opinions of many vineyards.
